THE LATE BATTLE GROUND IN ITALY. The London Times' correspondent writing from the banks of the Mincio, on the 15th

ult. savs: "Any one taking the railway at Turin, and passing over the line by which the flood of war has rolled its waves from the Sesia to the Mincio, will have some difficulty in convincing himself that he is going over the country which three nonths ago was the theatre of a mighty war between three of the most powerful military nations of the conti-In vain will be look for all those formidable traces of devastation with which he has been accustomed to couple the idea of war. Ruined towns and villages, depopulated districts, fields devastated, and trees cut down, the absence or misery of the inhabitants, and flights of crows and vulturesnothing of the kind will he see, but a country smiling, rich, full of small towns and green fields, the inhabitants following their ordinary avocations, cattle grazing in the well irrigated meadows, or drawing the peaceful plough, as if war had never approached this fertile region, or as if every one had forgotten the mighty changes which have occurred since the spring. It will require some one who has been here during the late war to point out to the visiter some bridge or other which has been blown up and which has been only temporarily repairsome half-effaced mounds, indicating the line of earthworks constructed by the Austrians during their advance. He will pass over the Ponto Nuovo di Magenta without ever imagining the hard struggle of which it has been the scene. Even the railway station at Magenta would not attract his notice were it not for a succession of mounds surmounted by wooden crosses which fill the hollow on the other side of it, or a number of boys hawking about shapeless leaden bullets and small Austrian double-headed eagles in brass, or else a windowless house beyond the station with some curious round holes through its walls. From Magenta to yond the station with some curious round Desenzano he will find no traces, except, perhaps, a solitary French gendarme at the station at Brescia. The omnibuses, will be waiting for the train as of yore, and those little nondescript curricles, with their jaded steeds, the remains, probably, of some of the migrating tribes which invaded the fertile plains of Lombardy in the beginning of our era.
"At Solferino the houses of the village are as they have been for years. The traveller will climb up to the tower, and have a magnificent view, nothing to remind him of war except a few holes in the enceinte of the church on the top, and, if he goes on, some loopholes in the walls of the church yard .-This, with a few mounds which the officious guide points out as the burial place of the heroes of Solferino, will be all that will remind him of the day on which the second great battle of modern times has been fought. He will go on to Carriana, to the Mincio, and come back again, and, if he sums up all he has seen, he will ask himself whether there ever was such a thing as an Italian war at all, or whether all about it can be already obliterated and forgotten; whether it can be true that the country has changed masters not three months ago, and that those few Bersaglieri who idle about the Mincio or look down on Peschiera are set there to guard the frontier against the former masters of this country, stongly suspected to have still a considerable longing for it. In vain you fully paid. look for any trace of the National Guard aug 10—c look for any trace of the National Guard which would be more necessary in the expressed Mineir country than anywhere also if posed Mincio country than anywhere else, if front of the Court House.

S. F BEACH, Com'r. for nothing else, at least, to make all other for fighting. You see some caps, blue and red, but nothing more. So close to the Austrian frontier, I need not tablished; they don't feel comfortable at all in the vicinity of the frontier; but there are beginning at Lonato and Castiglione, might easily have 4,000 or 5,000 men of this local force.

"Deprived, then, of the means of providing for their own internal security, and for emergencies, it would be but reasonable to in the neighborhood; in one of the most frequented points, like Desenzano, not one man. The result is, that the latter place, above all, situated at a convenient distance from Peschiera, has become the general rendezvous of Austrian spies, where they can hold free communication with the other agents dispersed all over Lombardy. And there are not a few of these going about, especially among the rural population. Such, at any rate, is the statement people make. But more astonishing than all this seems the fact that the whole internal government is still Austria. The magistrates in the towns, as eight years, and from whom naturally it cannot be expected that they should be vioare most exposed. They can less understand the reasons which induce the government to proceed slowly and surely, for they feel that they mght be the first to suffer from it. No sale. Sale to commence at 12 o'clock.

Pursuant to a decree of the County Court of Alexandria County, Va., of the 6th day of June, 859, in the suit of Kincheloe & Bruin, plaintiffs, against Thomas Coyle and others, defendants, the subscriber, as Commissioner for the purpose, will offer for sale, at public auction, in front of the Mayor's Office in the city of Alexandria, Virginia, on Saturday, the 22d day of October, 1859, at 12 clock, M., the following property:
A TRACT OF LAND, in the County of Prince William, Va., on the Orange & Alexandria Railroad, near its intersection with Bull Run, containing about 227 Acres and 22 Poles-being the same tract of land which was conveyed by Wilmer McLean, and others, to Geo. D. Fowle, and by the latter conveyed to said Coyle—the exact metes and bounds of which can be ascertained by consulting either of said conveyances. About 70 acres of this land is in cultivation, has been highly improved, and is very productive. The remainder is in wood of fine growth, which by its proximity to the Railroad, can be readily converted into money.--There is on the place a large and commodious Barn and Stable, nearly new, and built in the best man-the Alexandria, Loudoun and Hampshire Railroad. The tract contains 272 ACRES, (about 95 acres in wood,) and is well watered, there being several emergencies, it would be but reasonable to expect that there was at least an efficient police force to watch on these exposed points. No such thing: there is scarcely a carbineer the buse, and another within fifty yards of the barn. The improvements consist of a BRICK DWELLING HOUSE, containing eight rooms, a brick office, ice house, and servants house, and a large barn, 64 by 34 feet, with good stabling underneath. The land is well adapted to the growth of wheat, corn, and grass. Possession will be given on the first day of January next. TERMS :- One-tenth of the purchase money will be required in hand, the balance in three equal payments to bear interest, and secured by deed of trust, or retention of the title.

member, and giving a small premium note, the in sured saves nearly one-half of the amount charged by Stock Companies, when insuring from year year. This is the advantage resulting from the combination of the CASH AND MUTUAL PRINCIPLE This Company commenced issuing Policies against loss or damage by fire, on the Lith day of March, 1854, since which time over seven thousand seven hundred persons have insured and become members of the Company, and over seventy then sand dollars have been paid for losses. Having increased our business during the past year, we fee increased our business during the past year, we feel grateful for the liberal patronage bestewed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering propects of future usefulness. The Directors hope and believe, that, by prudence, caution, and a right system of economy, they will establish for this Company a reputation for cheapness and safety not surpassed by any Company in the U. States.
